Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

The Murray High Tigers can never complain about the support of fans.

A huge aggregation of Murrayans were on hand for the opening home of the season at Cadiz last Friday.

They braved the dust, detours, and threatening rain to see the Murray eleven open the grid season.

Folks were pretty well pleased with this first game.

They were happy with the way Steve Doran and Jerome Brandon carried the ball.

We hope the team realizes that some names will crop up repeatedly in game writeups. It is just because most folks have their eye on the ball and who is moving it.

We fully realize that the ball could not be moved, usually, unless that line does what it is supposed to do, namely to open holes and move down the opposition.

The boys in the line, historically, have been in the background so to speak, but anyone who knows football, can see when they are doing the job and when they are not.

The line incidentally, turned in a good job last Friday. It took them most of the first quarter to get going, but they caught on fast.

Murray High has an open date this Friday and on September 11 they meet Memphis Catholic, for the first time. On the 18th, they meet Mayfield here.

Murray State opens here on September 19 playing East Tennessee.

Lady, the dog, must have thought that we had a lion caged in the kitchen yesterday. Cooking some lamb chops and the strange odor really set her off. For some reason any thing of the sheep or goat family stirs her up.

Ahenhotep IV, the head man in Egypt a few hundred years ago, is generally credited with first promoting the idea of one God. The sun was his insignia and was noted in his philosophy as the giver of life. He was thought of as a heretic since the Egyptians of that day had a different God for about every thing you could think of.

That's a nice wide paved street in front of Robertson School.

The two main streets in the cemetery are now paved. The one on the west side of the cemetery was paved last year and now the one parallel to it and on the east side of the cemetery is paved.

This is a real service to the people of Murray. The city paid the full cost of this paving.

City and county are now dickering over that short stretch of Poplar between 15th and 16th. The block is paved down to the Murray Electric System sub-station, but from there to 16th, it is pretty rough and dusty.

When it was decided to the county by Mr. L. A. L. Langston, it was stipulated in writing that he would not be charged for any improvements such as paving.

The street was later taken in by the city and the city feels that the county has a moral obligation to at least go "halfway" on paving of the street. Of course any other property owners along that stretch would pay their normal one-third, we think however that there is only one other with the exception of Mr. Langston.

Ladies Day Planned At Calloway Club

Wednesday, September 2, will be the regular Ladies Golf Day at the Calloway County Country Club. Several ladies will be completing their match play.

Everyone is urged to come out and play. Pairing will be made at the 1st.

Mrs. Fred Gingles of Murray presented the program at the Laurel Oak Garden Club meeting in Mayfield on Tuesday, August 25, held at the Mayfield Electric and Water office.

The Murray woman displayed and discussed the techniques for making dried flower arrangements, mounted on velvet and framed in antique shadow-box frames.

Mrs. Gingles is doing several experiments on new methods for drying of flowers for use in arrangements and showed the group a stunning tree shaped grouping of dried flowers, berries, and grasses. Twelve-year old dried pansies mounted and framed and a paper mache figurine container on which she had won a blue ribbon completed a delightful and instructive meeting, according to an article and picture which appeared in the Mayfield Messenger.

Mrs. Gingles is a member of the Garden Department and Creative Arts Department of the Murray Woman's Club.

Many Attend Family Reunion Last Week

Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Johnson of Murray enjoyed a family reunion on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary with four generations attending, including seven children, ten grandchildren, and thirteen great grandchildren. Johnson of Paducah, Bobby Bruce Johnson of Alamo, Mrs. Orvin Hood of Harvey, Ill., Mrs. Lon McGhee of Detroit, Mich., Warren W. Johnson of Jackson, Miss., and Mrs. Henry N. Palmer of Harvey, Ill.

Long time family friends who attended the wedding anniversary and reunion helped to make it a heart warming occasion, a member of the family said.

State Leads Nation In Rehabilitation

Frankfort — Kentucky led the nation during the last fiscal year in growth rate of rehabilitation of physically and mentally handicapped persons.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, announced Kentucky's growth rate of 58 per cent as highest among the 50 states. The growth rate based on the increase in rehabilitants over the previous year — those persons now able, by training, to support themselves.

A record-breaking total of 2,975 handicapped Kentuckians were rehabilitated during the last fiscal year.

Dr. Harry M. Sparks, State superintendent of public instruction, said this was 1,094 more than the previous high of 1,881 in 1962-63.

The Bureau of Rehabilitation Services, directed by Ben P. Coffman, is in the State Department of Education.

In Calloway County 14 persons were rehabilitated and 38 cases served by the State rehabilitation bureau.

Coffman said it costs about $475 per person to rehabilitate the handicapped to self-supporting lives. He pointed out that this is cheap, for the 1,975 rehabilitants last year now are adding more than $5 million to the state's income instead of being on relief.

The Murray Fire Department was called this morning about 9:30 to extinguish a blaze between the buildings of the Murray Democrat and Melugin Outboard Marine on Maple Street.

Firemen said some old vines hanging down over the exhaust pipe of the Murray Democrat had caught on fire and caused quite a lot of smoke but no damage was reported to either of the buildings. A booster pump was put out the flames.

The department enjoyed a quiet weekend however with no calls being received.

The last calls received by the department, before the fire this morning, were the two runs they made last Thursday at 5:45 and 9:15 p.m. when the vacant house at 411 North Fifth Street, owned by Red Woods, was destroyed by fire.

71 Players Report Today For Practice At Murray State

A squad of 71 players, which includes 27 lettermen, will report for first day of football practice at Murray State College, tomorrow.

The squad will check in today for equipment and picture taking and will be feted tonight at a barbecue. Two-a-day practice sessions will begin the next day and continue until school begins Sept. 14.

The Racers' first game will be Sept. 19 with East Tennessee at Murray.

Despite the large number of lettermen returning, 10 of whom were starters last season when the Racers were 5-5, Coach Don Shelton says he faces the season with only "reserved optimism."

"Some of the problems that plagued us last year may still be with us," Shelton said in reference to the center and tackle positions. Center was the sore spot in the Racers' forward wall last season, mainly because of a lack of experience hands, and former guard Jerry Woodall, a 200-pound senior, has been moved to that position.

Neil Haynes, a 205-pound junior, "could make a fine center," Shelton said, indicating that those two will man that post.

Injuries hit the tackles in 1963 and Shelton is concerned with whether or not his probable starters, 230-pound junior Charlie Mitchell and 225-pound junior George Trumbo, will be ready for full-time duty in 1964. Both were slowed by injuries throughout last season.

The other line positions, guard and end, will be manned by proven players headed by all-conference guard John Wheeler, a sturdy 240-pound senior who was the team's valuable player in 1963. Dick Berry, a 200-pound senior, and Charles "Punch" Hina, a 190-pound junior, strengthen the guard position. Jerry Grantham, a 181-pound junior who last year was the second-leading pass receiver in the OVC, and Tom Cox, a 212-pound

Most State Parks Will Close November 1; Dam To Stay Open

FRANKFORT, Aug. 27—Kentuckians and out-of-state tourists can look forward to an extended season throughout the Kentucky State park system, Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell, reported today. "All State vacation-type parks will remain open through Sunday, November 1, and four parks will be open during both the fall and winter season," Bell said.

Bell added, "We have decided, due to the unusual demand we are experiencing for our vacation-type facilities, to extend the park season through Sunday, November 1, throughout the park system. We feel that the fall season is one of the most attractive periods for Kentuckians and out-of-staters to enjoy our facilities. This has been such a banner year for the tourist and travel business in Kentucky that we feel we can enjoy our best fall season."

The announcement means that all of the following vacation-type parks and their overnight facilities and dining rooms will remain open through Sunday, November 1:

Kentucky Dam Village at Gilbertsville, Kenlake near Murray, Rough River which is between Leitchfield and Hardinsburg, Pennyrile near Dawson Springs, Lake Cumberland near Jamestown, Cumberland Falls near Corbin, General Butler at Carrollton, Natural Bridge at Glade, Carter Caves near Olive Hill, Buckhorn between Booneville and Hazard, Jenny Wiley at Prestonsburg, and Pine Mountain at Pineville.

All these parks have lodges and dining room facilities and all but Buckhorn have housekeeping cottages.

Four vacation parks will be kept open throughout the winter. They are:

Kentucky Dam Village in Western Kentucky, Cumberland Falls in South-Central Kentucky, General Butler in North-Central Kentucky and Jenny Wiley in Eastern Kentucky.

"Based on past experience, these four parks have the greatest off-season demand, give us a good geographical distribution and are ideal as sites for the winter training schools which will be conducted this year for key personnel from all parks," Bell explained.

All housekeeping cottages throughout the park system will be available through November 1. Lodge cottages at Cumberland Falls will be available until October 15. All Kentucky Dam Village, the old dining room will remain open through Labor Day and the coffee shop through Sunday, November 1.

Tent and trailer camping areas at all State Parks will remain open through Sunday, November 1, Bell said.

Boat dock and golf course services will be available to the public through the year.

Bell said that there would be a number of special fall weekend promotions at the various vacation parks during September and October, similar to the "Fishing Unlimited" weekend which was held at Lake Cumberland State Park in early spring. These special promotions are to be announced at a later date, but one of them, a "Square Dance Vacation" has already been set for Cumberland Falls State Park, October 19 through 24.

The museum at Audubon will be open daily through November and visitors will be able to go through the museum on all weekends during November, December, January, February, and March and by appointment on weekdays during these five months.

Phils Happy Long Week Is Over

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer
The week that was "is over" for the Philadelphia Phillies — and happy they are that it's history — but the king-sized hangover are being nursed by the Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants.

How long does it take to get over a hangover? Well, it could be over in 24 hours for the Phillies but it could last all winter for the Reds and Giants. Because it was a week in which the Phillies gave the other two contenders a golden opportunity to make up important ground but in which the Reds and Giants failed to make a strong move.

In the last seven days, the Phillies won only three of seven games but the Reds did no better than win four of seven and the Giants won only three of their seven games. And so the Phillies' National League lead remains a tidy 5½ games and (1-0-0) the strongest ally a team can have in a pennant countdown — is more and more on their side.

Pirates Rap Phils

It was more of the same Sunday when the Pittsburgh Pirates, who had been the Phillies 10-2 but the Reds and Giants could get no better than a split of their doubleheaders. The Reds rallied to shade the Houston Colts 7-6 after an 8-5 loss and the Giants whipped the Milwaukee Braves 13-10 but then suffered a 7-4 setback.

Bob Veale struck out seven batters to raise his season total to a club mark of 168 behind a 10-hit Pirate attack that included three hits each by Bob Bailey, Roberto Clemente and Gene Freese. Chris Short, who started for the Phillies with a league-leading earned run average of 1.65, was routed in 1 1/3 innings and suffered his seventh loss against 14 victories.

The Reds' chance to make hay out of the disintegration of the Phillies' four-run rally in the 13th win for Houston in the first game of the doubleheader at Cincinnati. The Reds committed six errors and fell behind 6-0 in the second game but rallied to win it on Frank Robinson's ninth-inning double.

Giants Rally

Jim Davenport's two-run single and a run-scoring single by Orlando Cepeda enabled the Giants to rally for four runs in the eighth inning and win their opener in Milwaukee. But the Braves rebounded in the nightcap as Raco Carly banged out five straight hits and Hank Aaron hit a three-run homer to lead Tony Cloninger to his 14th win.

The St. Louis Cardinals drubbed the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 and the Los Angeles at St. Louis, night-Drysdale 14-13 vs. Cuellar 5-0. (Only games scheduled.)

Bill Skowron Makes Short Look Good

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer
"If Moose gives us the muscle, we can win."

It was July 15 and the Chicago White Sox were in third place in the American League when General Manager Ed Short made that comment after obtaining Bill Skowron in a waiver deal with the Washington Senators.

Now it's the head of the September run, the White Sox are in second place only a half game behind the Baltimore Orioles and Skowron is making Short look like a mighty fine prophet. Indeed, in fact, if the White Sox go on to win the pennant they may look back on the homer Skowron hit Sunday, Aug. 30, as their most important single hit of the season.

The blow came off Robin Roberts and snapped a scoreless tie in the fifth inning of the White Sox's clutch 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. By going on to win the game, they remained only a half game out of first place.

When the 33-year-old Skowron joined the White Sox he was hitting .271 with 13 homers and 41 runs batted in. Since then he's raised his average to .285 has hit two key homers and driven in 25 runs.

Add Two Runs

The White Sox added two runs in the ninth inning after they had to bring in relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm to save the lead in the eighth. The win was Joel Horlen's 10th of the season and the loss Roberts' sixth.

The New York Yankees crept to within three games of the lead with a 9-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The Minnesota Twins shaded the Washington Senators 5-4, the Los Angeles Angels nipped the Detroit Tigers 5-4 and the Cleveland Indians topped the Kansas City Athletics 5-3 after a 9-3 defeat.

In the National League, Pittsburgh walloped Philadelphia 10-2, Milwaukee beat San Francisco 7-4 after a 13-10 loss, Cincinnati nipped Houston 7-6 after an 8-5 defeat and Chicago defeated New York 7-3.

Homer Help Yankee

Homer by Johnny Blanchard and Hector Lopez paced a nine-hit attack that enabled rookie Mel Stottlemyre to win his 14th game for the Chicago Cubs downed the New York Mets 7-3 in other NL action. In the American League, Chicago defeated Baltimore 3-0, New York clubbed Boston 9-3, Minnesota nipped Washington 5-4, Los Angeles overcame Detroit 5-4 and Cleveland defeated Kansas City 6-5 after a 9-3 loss.

Curt Simmons pitched a four-hitter to win his 14th game for the Cardinals, whose eight-hit attack was led by two hits each by Dick Groat and Ken Boyer. Larry Miller was tagged for five hits and two runs in 5 2/3 innings to suffer his sixth loss.

demure to score his fourth victory. It was the third straight win for the Yankees, who picked up a full game on both the Orioles and White Sox over the weekend.

Tony Oliva's 28th homer snapped a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning and gave relief pitcher Jim Perry his third victory for the Twins. Don Mincher also homered for the Twins while Don Lock connected for the Senators. Allen Koch suffered his ninth setback for the Senators.

Ken McBride went six innings to score his first victory since June 11 and his third of the season behind a Los Angeles attack that included homers by Jim Fregos and Willie Smith. Dave Wickham, a 16-game winner, failed to retire a run ninth-inning single.

Jim Gentile drove in five runs with two homers and a single and Nelo Mathews also hit two homers as the Athletics snapped a six-game losing streak in their opener with the Indians. Cleveland won the nightcap on Max Alvis' two-run ninth-inning single.

NANCY

When Ras tried the match it sputtered, flared, and burst into flame. He placed it under the carefully built structure. They curled, then smoked, and a small flame grew. Ras fed it carefully; at last he could place large chunks of driftwood on it, even a log.

He stood up, his knees shaking with relief and weariness as he felt the strong welcome of the heat. He arranged the girl before the fire as close as possible. Then he knelt beside her and began chafing her wrists and arms. She sighed and moved closer to him.

"Oh . . ." she whispered. "That feels so good, so good."

"I'm glad, Ma'am," he kept repeating as gradually she warmed back to life. Some of the war he palestness was leaving her face, the lips had ceased quivering and were no longer blue and pinched. Ras stood up. "I'm so thirsty," she said. "Is there some water?"

"Yes," he said, conscious of his own thirst, which had been overshadowed by the urgent necessity of reviving and warming her. The first taste of water, scooped up a handful of water and tasted it. It was slightly brackish, tasting of lead and mud and other things, but drinkable. The first taste of water, he drank and then he drank until caution drove him away.

There was nothing in which he could carry water to the girl; small as she was, she was heavy. He did so, putting her down by the water's edge and then supporting her shoulders as she drank from his cupped palm. When she had finished, he washed off her salt-roughened face and smoothed back her hair before carrying her to the fire.

"I can walk," she said as he lifted her.

"No. Rest and get your strength back. I'll go get some food."

"I don't believe it, but I'm highly in favor of it," she said.

Ras fell over a rock as he walked to the beach, so full of turmoil and emotion that he was walking as blind as a bull in a pin in the mud. Absolutely unbelievable that this girl should have been on the gunboat. He had almost killed her! Yet she had showed no hatred, and she was conscious enough now to realize what he was—an enemy of her country.

The truth about the young woman's identity held a disturbing surprise for distrustful Lieut. Huger. Continue the story here tomorrow.

CHAPTER 15

FACE DOWN, the young woman lay motionless on the sandy island, her left arm flung forward, hiding the sideways turned face. Death had clung to the slender curved back.

Ras Huger did not see her as a nearly naked young woman lying before him. She was all woman set and helplessness in a war in which they had no part. She was the bright vision that kept men going through all the horrors that war could produce. If she died now, for Ras that vision would die. With a cry of angry impatience he dropped on his knees beside her.

He turned her until her head was downward on the slope, face on her left hand. Desperately, he tried to remember all he had been taught about reviving the nearly drowned.

Arms stiff, he leaned forward, placed one hand on each side of her slim back at the lower end of the ribs and pushed downward. He let his arms slip free, swayed back, paused, leaned forward, placing them again and pushing down. He worked up a slow rhythm, for this might go on for a very long time.

The fog was drifting faster now and a small wind was beginning to blow. Great weariness fell over Ras. Was there any use?

After a long time the sound of air pushed out and drawn back into her lungs sounded as if she were breathing. Ras kept on, but almost bereft of hope. Overhead a brighter spot in the mist showed that the sun was high. Hours had passed.

She moved beneath his hands and groaned, gagging, then retching, her body shaking and quivering. He could feel her heart's violent pounding through her ribs. He kept on with his remorseless even rhythm. It was terrible to see and hear her struggles, the raw breaths, the choking, sickening spasms of the reviving body. Her ribs were moving, and when Ras dared cease his manipulations she kept on heaving.

When he turned her gently on her back her tattered shirt was covered with wet sand. Hastily he unbuckled his ragged shirt and placed it across her chest and shoulders; then he leaned forward and wiped the sand from her cheeks and mouth.

Her eyes opened a little, tears trickling from them. They were blank, unseeing. She was as yet hardly conscious.

"You are safe," Ras said softly, reassuringly.

The eyes flickered, then they focused, first on something above her and far away, then on Ras. They widened. For a long moment the two of them stared into each other's eyes.

"Who . . ." she breathed, then her eyes closed again and she shuddered violently from head to toe. Ras became conscious that he was freezing cold, now that the exertions had ceased. The wind was blowing stronger and on this foggy April day, miles at sea, there was still a little of winter's breath.

The girl shuddered again and he saw that her lips were blue. She was far from safe, still in shock, and freezing. If he couldn't get her warm she would slip back quietly over that dreadful edge. The fog blew coldly against his cheek at the thought, leaving a clammy trail. He picked her up and staggered through the salt grass and seaweed up the lip of a dune and over. Before him was a shallow depression. A few stunted trees were there, and water glistened from beneath them. Rains had been heavy recently, and this shallow pool might have been sufficiently sheltered from spray to be drinkable. He knelt and placed her in a thick bed of narrow-leaved grass. At least here they would be out of the wind. Then he stood up, feeling her wide eyes upon him.

HARDLY daring to do so he felt in his pockets. Had he left it in his coat? Was it life or death his fingers would find? In the right-hand pocket he found a crumpled handkerchief, a bank of strong string, and a few coins. Slowly he pushed his hand into the other pocket and at once felt the slick outline of the pouch, containing the pipe and tobacco, and—usually—a few matches.

The pouch was wet. He dried it as best he could on his trousers and unrolled it, drying each of the many folds. After three turns the oilskin no longer was wet. The final fold, with shaking fingers he held the pouch open and peered in. Pipe—yes. Tobacco—yes. Matches—

They were there. A dozen of them, and they looked dry. His fingers shook as he touched one. It felt dry. Would they work? Confederate made, they weren't dependable even under the best conditions. He returned the pouch to his pocket and took out a few twigs. His pocket knife lay beneath the pouch; with it he had scored dozens of silvers from the driest piece of driftwood.

Dear Abby . . .

THE SCENT OF CONTROVERSY!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Though I am supposed to solve political problems, I have one which I have wrestled with for some time and I need help. It pertains to skunks.

Two of my grandsons want to adopt skunks. I told them that I would go along with them. Confidentially, I even encouraged them. When I was young, I used to trap skunks (some people say I still do). A good de-scented skunk, regardless of his politics, is not too bad to have around the house. However, Mrs. Pearson objects. She says she will not tolerate skunks in our home. Since my grandsons are visiting us this summer, and I did promise them some skunks, what is your advice?

DREW PEARSON: A promise is a promise. Get the grandsons the skunks. They make wonderful pets! But be sure they're de-scented — otherwise I predict your life won't be worth a scent!

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and I hope you won't think my problem is too silly to answer. You see, my parents do not allow me to date a boy unless he is the same faith as I am. You can't always tell by their looks, or even by their names, and I don't think it is very nice to come right out and ask a person what church he belongs to. Yet there would be no sense in starting to like a boy who doesn't go to my church because, if he liked me, I couldn't date him anyway. So how can I find out what religion a boy is without coming right out and asking him?

PHILADELPHIA: There is nothing wrong with "coming right out and asking him." In fact, that's the best way to get an honest answer to a serious question.

DEAR ABBY: I am the youngest of six children. And to make matters worse I was a "change of life" baby, and it was almost like being an only child. My mother was 51 years old when I was born. Well, whenever my mother introduces me to any of her friends, she says, "... and this is my baby." I am 36 years old, Abby, and this is pretty embarrassing. Should I correct my mother?

A 200-pound baby
DEAR ABBY: Your mother is lucky to have a 36-year-old "baby," and you are even luckier to have an 87-year-old mother. I don't recommend correcting one's mother at any age.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE CLAIR-ROIL KID ON LAKE CALHOUN": No woman who has been "39" for the past ten years has the right to call a car dealer a crook because he set the speedometer back.
